New York Letter.

NEW YORK, July 23, 1870.

Editors Morning Herald:

Well, we had a pleasant trip via Chautauqua Lake, where we stopped long enough to take in the cool breezes, large mosquitoes, and a boat load of fish; and picked up a copy of the MORNING HERALD at Jamestown which informed us that Titusville is to have another railroad. If the con-struction is in the hands of the Casements, you may expect expeditions work.

We arrived in New York via New York and Erie Railroad at about ten, and slowly broiled up Broadway in a condition the reverse of comfortable. Quite a crowd were thronging Wall street, and crossing over, we found the menagerie in more than usual uproar, the red flag of war evidently exerting an exciting influence upon the bulls, while the bears were peacefully growling and gloating over the advance of Five-Twenties and consequent fall of gold. It's an ill wind that blows nobody good, and what is death to the French or Prussian recruit, is not only sport, but board and lodging to the ursine denizens of Wall street. Beyond the financial circle but little interest is manifested in European movements, except in the enthusiastic demonstrations of patriotic and intoxicated Gauls and Teutons. The Bremen steamers have been temporarily withdrawn, while those from Havre and Brest pursue the even tenor of their way; which fact tells more plainly than telegrams of the superiority of the French navy. In spite of this, the office of the Prussian Consul is filled with Germans desiring free passage and a commission, most of them giving as credentials certificates of service in the U. S. A. as captains, lieutenants, etc.

Every one of a nautical turn of mind is intensely interested in the expected arrival of the yachts Cambria and Dauntless, which are daily and hourly expected. They are so evenly matched that it is impossible to predict, but our prejudices are in favor of the Dauntless, James Gordon Bennett, Jr., and America. Betting is heavy on this subject in sporting circles.

At half past two we followed the eager throng to Prospect Park, whether the Emporium seemed to have poured her thousands till every available foot of room, whether sitting or standing, was occupied.

The first race was for a sum of $1,500, for horses who had never beaten 236. There were three entries—Western Girl, Idol and John J. Bradley, of whom the last named was the favorite in betting. Idol won the first heat, and John J. Bradley the second and third; but the winner turned up in Western Girl, who won the fourth, fifth and sixth heats. The following time was made : 2.31 1/4, 2.29 1/4, 2.29 1/4, 2.29 1/4, 2.27.

Next came the great event of the day, the trot between Lady Thorpe and American Girl for a purse of $5,000. Lady Thorpe was the favorite, and fully justified the confidence of her supporters by winning in three straight heats in 2.19 1/2, 2.20 1/4, 2.19 1/4, which is the quickest ever made upon the Prospect Park course.

Napoleon's Proclamation. The Journal Official publishes the following proclamation from the Emperor to the people of France :

FRANCE.—There are in the life of people solemn moments, when the national honor, violently excited, presses itself irresistibly; rises above all other interests and applies itself with the single purpose of directing the destinies of the nation. One of these decisive hours has now arrived for France. Prussia, to whom we have given evidence during and since the war of 1866 of the most conciliatory disposition, has held our good will of no account and has returned our forbearance by encroachments. She has aroused distrust in all quarters, necessitating exaggerated armaments, and has made of Europe a camp where religious distrust and fear of the invader are rampant.

A few days ago she disclosed the instability of the international understanding, and shows the gravity of the situation. In the presence of new tensions Prussia was made to understand our claims. They were erased and followed with contemptuous treatment. Our country manifested profound displeasure at this action, and quickly the war cry resounded from one end of France to the other. There remains for us nothing but to confide our destinies to the chance of arms.

We do not make war upon Germany, whose independence we respect. We pledge ourselves that the people composing our country will defend their principles freely of their destinies. As for us, we demand the establishment of a state of things guaranteeing our security and assuring the future. We wish to conquer a durable peace based on the true interests of the people, and assist in abolishing that precarious condition of things when all nations are forced to employ their resources in arming against each other. The glorious flag of France which is once more unfurled to the face of our challenger, is the same which has borne over Europe the civilization of its great revolution. It represents the same principles. It will inspire the same devotion.

Scarcity of Supplies. Great difficulties are experienced in getting supplies forward, not only from Paris but from the country about Metz. All horses belonging to inhabitants have been seized. Even meat and vegetables are beginning to fail. This indicates the French movements may be still for some time delayed.

Prussians Moving. A correspondent writing from Paris says: "Prussian troops are passing through the forest to the south of Metz. Several detachments were stopped by Swiss authorities, but have an observation corps of 25,000 soldiers."

French Troops Concentrating. General McMahon's headquarters were at Strasbourg. A strong French force was sent to prevent surprise through the town of Gersweiler. Sharp skirmishing took place between the forces and the town was soon retaken, leaving ten killed and wounded in the field. No loss on the Prussian side. This action demonstrated that the needful support is superior to the chassepot. Subsequently a company of Prussians of the 17th Regiment of the Line captured the French custom house at Schrecklinger. The officers of the custom house made a stout resistance and were all either killed or captured. One Prussian officer was slightly wounded in this engagement. Deserters from the French army are very numerous and are continually coming into Prussian lines.

No Battle Yet. LONDON, July 25. No report of any general engagement received.

French Maritaires Regulations. PARIS, July 25. The Journal Official contains the following declaration: "The French Government has issued orders that in the prosecution of war commanders of French forces will scrupulously regard, with respect to neutral powers, the rules of international law, and that they especially conform to the principles of the declaration of the Paris Congress of 1856, as follows: Private bands of war; merchandise except contraband, except contraband of war, is not seizable under a foreign flag; a blockade must be effective. Although Spain and the United States did not adhere to the declaration of 1856, French vessels will not seize property of an enemy when such property is a cargo in Spanish or American vessel, provided it is not contraband of war. France will no longer claim the right to confiscate the property of a merchantman Spanish found bound vessels of an American."

The Journal Official also reports that in spite of the interdiction pronounced by the

The army of South Germany has been ordered North and the Prussian South.

Demarck has decided on war, but will wait until the French fleet sails. Hungary is also in favor of France.

An intrigue between Hesse and France is suspected.

The Czar addressed a note to the French government.

He regrets the precipitate measures taken on both sides and that opportunity was not allowed Russia and the other Powers of Europe to act in favor of peace.

The Czar, when regarding the calamity of war will remain neutral so long as the interests of Russia do not suffer.

He adds that he is ready to do all to limit hostilities and mitigate the horrors of war.

A correspondent of the Independent Belge, writing from Metz, France, says that the country swarms with Prussian spies, while France declines to avail herself of any such instrumentality.

It is not likely that a battle will occur for some days. Both armies are in splendid condition. The French have the best position, but General Moltke will await an assault on the Prussian lines by the French, so as to gain the initial triumph if possible.

London, July 23.—Baron von Beust, Austrian Prime Minister, has issued a circular to Austrian ministers abroad. He says if unsuccessful in sparing Europe and the various consequences incident to a war with France, Austria will be compelled to make a secret alliance with the other Powers of Europe to act in favor of peace.

The peace party in Paris is numerically diminishing every hour, and the small number remaining dare not make a show in the streets.

English Officers in the Prussian Army.

A great many English officers of note go into the Prussian army.

The Projected Secret Treaty Between France and Prussia.

LONDON, July 23.—The Times publishes the projected treaty submitted by France to the Prussian government, and guarantees its authenticity.

The preamble sets forth the ties of friendship between the governments, people, &c., hereby conclude the subjoined articles.

The fifth article is as usual, one of offensive and defensive alliance between the two nations.

French Fortifications.

LONDON, July 25.

A special correspondent writes from Metz, July 21, that thirteen camps have been formed around that city. He was allowed to inspect Fort Quinton, under the command of General Metz, and obtained full information was furnished him. The fort will be completed in twenty-four hours, sixty cannons being placed in position. The ditches, casements, bomb-proof, barracks, everything connected with the fortress is constructed on an immense scale. The work is not designed to defend Metz merely, that place being sufficiently fortified, but to protect a vast encampment like the present or give shelter to a beaten army. The fact that the walls were commenced a month ago is clear proof that France was preparing for an offensive war at the first opportunity. There are two forts at Quinton commanding the banks of the river and approaches to the town. The guns of the forte can play with impunity after effecting any movement that may advance through the valley to attack the town, while in the valley there is ample shelter for a whole army, and transported them East so that the disease has scattered broadcast in the States. These facts were recently discovered. 1,300 robes have been seized at Utal Station, and the managers of the Pacific Railroad are using every effort to prevent the passage of any more death-spreading merchandise over their line.

A DELIVER—The heavy rain on yesterday morning again demonstrated the necessity for improved evergreen trees. Perry street was sewer up the hill with earth at the corner of Spring street and before it could be excavated the base of Talamo's paint store was partially filled with water, causing considerable damage to stock. So long as the surface water from the north west portion of the Second Ward is drained through Monroe and Perry street's there's danger freshets will continue. The obvious remedy is an underground sewer through Monroe street, which will carry the surface water direct to Oil Creek.

Judge Douglass.

All the candidates on the Republican ticket, Joshua Douglass, Esq., of Meadville, our candidate for President Judge is perhaps the best known, if not the only one known, to our citizens at large at all familiarly and the high personal regard in which he is held in this community was strongly exhibited at the late Primary Meetings, when he so handily led all competitors. Indeed, the success of the "Little Giant" in the recent caucuses, could hardly have been more gratifying to himself than to his hosts of friends in Titusville. Mr. Douglass has always had a good many clients here, and has first and last, owned a good deal of real estate in our city, and has in all things been so faithful, straightforward and energetic, that he has secured many warm friends in Titusville who feel a particular pleasure in his personal triumph and elevation. Standing by his friends when they needed assistance and could therefore appreciate it the most he has bound them to him with hooks of steel. He possesses too, the requirements for an eminent judicial career, competent learning and judicial experience, a cautious judgment, a fine sense of natural equity and moral independence, united with habits of study and firm health. The balances of justice can be safely committed to his hands.

THE SPORTS OF THE ARENA—There has been a growing tendency among the sporting fraternity and gentlemen or leisure in our city to revive the sports of the ancients and instead of betting their money on the fastest horse in the pool and invariably losing to organize a series of Spanish bull fights and additional trifles or if circumstances would warrant the purchase of the Coliseum in Rome interest Aves—Mrs. Potter, Young Hoening and Stettimer
